Jobs boss picks staff who 'fit in'

Suzie Majer, 39, is Majer Recruitment managing director.

THE first thing I do in the morning is kiss my husband and thank my lucky stars that I have my family and my health.

The book/film/album that changed my life was The God of Small Things. I just loved it and related to everything about it as I lived in India for some time.

I financed my first investment by saving hard — and some great advice and directional help from my father.

I learned most of my skills from my father. To be able to draw from your parents' knowledge to create your own success and wealth is a very lucky thing to have had and I constantly thank him for it.

The best investment I've made is property. It is the best vehicle, however at times it is difficult when uncontrollable factors limit saleability and the market often changes.

hicle is definitely property.

The hardest financial lesson I've learnt is, if you can't afford it, just don't buy it!

I spend most of my pay cheque on our mortgage unfortunately; however it is nice to know that it will be ours one day and it is easy to see where all the money and hard work goes. I secretly wish I could own a house on the beach, live in a sarong and work a four-day week.

When choosing staff, whether individuals fit with my team is the most important thing apart from work experience: personality, stability, loyalty, high energy levels and most of all a sense of humour. Success is measured by happiness and the little things which are the most important.

'SUCCESS is measured by happiness and the little things which are the most important' ... Suzie Majer.
